Project Pinewood's Public Exhibition for Autumn 2008

Following the recent consultation workshops held at Pinewood Studios, the Project Pinewood public exhibition is rescheduled for later this year.

Pinewood welcomed a number of stakeholders to its workshops conducted in May including local councillors from Iver, Fulmer and Wexham, local authorities, employees and industry experts in order to understand and evaluate the issues and opportunities relevant to the proposal. Topic areas discussed comprised Transport & Movement, Green Infrastructure, Community Facilities and Education and Employment and Training.

"The feedback gained from the workshops is proving invaluable. Given the importance we're placing on stakeholder opinions, we're rescheduling the public exhibition to the autumn of this year in order to further investigate the key issues raised and to incorporate them into the project's design process" said Andrew M. Smith, Pinewood's Group Corporate Affairs Director.

The exhibition will outline the next planning stage of Project Pinewood and local residents will be given the opportunity to comment. Feedback gained will be carefully considered before a planning application is prepared and submitted.
